The NASW Code of Ethics (2008) states that service, social justice, dignity and worth of the person, the importance of human relationships, integrity and competence are the core values of the social work profession. Unlike many schools, our program includes a unique, rigorous academic calendar and clinical assignments requiring that, in a period of two and a quarter years, students may move up to five times and accommodate themselves to three different educational and practice settings. As social work makes heavy demands on its personnel, we would like you to comment on the applicant's:
